"Reflexis enables us to streamline communication and allocate task hours most effectively at the store level, which translates to increased productivity and improved customer service."

- Senior Director of Operations, The Home Depot

The Home Depot needed a task management solution that could support their centralized workload planning and store communications, automate their retail operations, and reduce costs.

The company selected Reflexis Task Manager™ to streamline the planning, execution, and compliance management of their corporate initiatives and routine store tasks.

With Reflexis, The Home Depot has provided their organization with real-time visibility into task completion and compliance levels, and uses StoreWalk to conduct more effective and efficient store audits.
